Chapter 1 by Elisabeth Ford

"Well i know your laying back, contemplating your own death.Well just look at what you've done.Don't you dare forget the sun, love."-Get Scared

I've been staying in my room for 7 days now.Watching anime, and eating ice cream refusing to go into the sun.

I forgot what it looks like, and how it feels.Yesterday I heard a big explosion and people screaming, but I don't care.I'm staying here even if the end of the world is happening right outside that door.

My mother told me if all i was gonna do was sit in my room and watch anime, then i might as well stay here.But my motto is "if your gonna live watching anime, your gonna die watching anime."

A loud scream is heard outside

I looked up startled.Something was banging on my door.

Did i want to open it or finish watching my episode of Shimoneta?

"Damn!"I paused my episode, and walked over to the door.

"Hold on, i'm coming." i unlatched the lock, and opened the door.

The creature jumped on me, and pushed me to the ground.

"GET OFF!!"i pushed him off of me a ran outside.

It said "GET OUT THE WAY."

I looked at him, and noticed he was part human part what ever the hell those things were.

I immediately got out of the way.He uncovered a weird gun from under his coat.

He aimed for the zombies head but missed.It reached out, and grabbed my arm.

I spoke with a voice that sounded like a broken record.

"YoU...Are THe onE We've BeEn LoOkInG FoR.YoU'Re ComInG WiTH Me."

A blue mist surrounded us, and everything outside of the mist started to disappear.

A creaking noise surrounded us, and everything flashed white.

As my vision started to adjust to my surroundings I noticed we were in a weird lab.
